REQUEST FOR HELP FROM REV. LYNDSEY MCCALL, FPC YOUTH DIRECTOR

I need your help! On March 4th after the 11:00 worship service the Presbytery of Eastern Virginia is hosting a Rise Against Hunger (formerly Stop Hunger Now) meal packing event at our church. Over the past year, I have been actively helping to build the youth ministry in our Presbytery. The Presbytery has made huge strides in that direction but it seems that we have not built enough momentum to attract sufficient youth to conduct this event. Therefore, we're in need of additional support. To make the Rise Against Hunger event happen we will need at least 60 people to participate! We have some youth registered already but we're still in need of significant volunteer help. If you're willing to help me insure the success of this youth event by packing meals, please contact Randy DuVall, Director of Missions or Register on Sign-Up Genius. Thank you, Lyndsey.

Editor: For those who have helped out during one of the three Rise Against Hunger events previously conducted at First Presbyterian, you know how fun and rewarding they are. For those who have not previously participated in one of these events, you have missed a good time. The meals we package are distributed throughout the developing world and served to children who otherwise might not get a hot meal that day. I have personally seen the impact these meals make for children living in desperately poor villages in Nicaragua. Most meals are distributed through local churches in those countries where Rise Against Hunger works. First Presbyterian has proudly packaged over 36,000 meals for children through these events.

Lyndsey and the Presbytery need you help! Please contact me today to commit to help. We need to rally behind Lyndsey and her efforts. It will only take two hours of your life to help greatly improve the lives of less fortunate children. Join us for a fun food frenzy. Randy
